Like many young Australian doctors, Dr Vincent Cornelisse was offered an attractive salary and relocation package if he would spend two years working in a regional community in country Queensland.

Unlike many young doctor's who take this offer up, Vincent is gay, and would be bringing his partner Jonathan with him.

Jono is an artist and filmmaker, and when confronted with life in a sleepy small town in Australia's Redneck Center, what else was he to do but document his journey to become the ultimate 'Doctor's Wife'.

A heartwarming adventure that turns the tables on our preconceptions about safety, acceptance and country community.

"An interesting doco with a great, positive message for everyone." - QNews

"Charming and engaging." - Fuse Magazine

"Jonathan is a multi-talented artist who lays bare all the raw emotions and fears inherent with being a stranger in a very strange land. A colorful cast of real life characters embody this film and Jonathan has captured them gingerly."

-Ezra Buzzington- Hollywood Fringe [Film]

The Doctor's Wife is set for DVD release later this year. The film has already won audiences over throughout Australia, and has raised thousands of dollars for GLBTIQ charities.

Don't miss the opportunity to witness the story that has won audiences over throughout Australia, the US and Canada.

You'll laugh, you'll cry, you may even wee a little.
